All ALLIANCE HIGH SCHOOLS ARE AMONGST THE TOP IN THE NATION, ACCORDING TO 2019 US NEWS & WORLD REPORT BEST HIGH SCHOOLS RANKINGS

All 15 Alliance high-performing public charter schools, located in underserved communities, made the prestigious list.

April 30, 2019 (LOS ANGELES) – Alliance College-Ready Public Schools, a non-profit network of high-performing public charter schools in Los Angeles, proudly announced that—once again—all 15 Alliance high schools eligible for the 2019 News and World Best High Schools Rankings, made the list. The report ranked over 17,000 public high schools nationwide, including 1,760 public charters, based on six criteria: college readiness; breadth of college curriculum; reading and math proficiency; reading and math performance; underserved student performance; and graduation rate.

“Alliance intentionally opens schools in educationally underserved area of Los Angeles,” explains Dan Katzir, Alliance CEO. “Having all our high schools recognized as best in the nation proves that excellence in public education, regardless of zipcode, is possible. I am incredibly grateful that the work of our scholars and staff is recognized.”

Alliance schools offer a personalized learning environment with small classes and a low counselor-to-scholar ratio. 95% of Alliance scholars are accepted to college, with 73% to a four-year university in 2018. Alliance recently published a report on its College Matching initiative which includes best practices as well as the Power 150™ Index— an Alliance-curated list of 150 colleges with a graduation rate of 75% or above for students with similar demographic profiles.
